Dear Baldy:

A week ago today, remember?

We got in to El Paso at 7:20 PM the following day; the families had the fattened calf all ready, our mothers cried on our necks and on each others, but in spite of tears it was a great reunion.

I found that the First National Bank in which I had some of our "hard" earned had closed up shop on account of a lot of bad paper, so it looks as though that the car we had planned on buying will not be forthcoming for a while. It is fortunate that we had some travelers' checks left and some other checks that are enabling us to buy some of the necessary clothing.
